Lander University -- Ph: (864) 388-8800

Freshman courses in English are designed to develop the student's awareness of the relationship between writing and thinking. English 101 students concentrate on developing their own intellectual positions and conveying them through various kinds of writing, including but not limited to formal essays. Instruction will include attention to the grammatical and structural conventions of academic writing and to basic documentation of sources. Students are encouraged to make full use of the Writing Center and its resources.

ENGL 102: Writing and Inquiry II 3.00 Credits

Lander University -- Ph: (864) 388-8800

Building upon what they have learned in English 101, students in English 102 will continue to explore the relationship between writing and thinking by building their awareness of the ways that others define their ideas and arrive at their positions. Students will write in response to various kinds of information, including written texts, and will refine their abilities to analyze, to evaluate, and to

Getting Started with your Student Account

The image shows a screenshot of the SC TRAC website. A red callout box highlights the 'My Account' menu in the top left corner, which lists the following links: My Profile, My Course History, My Equivalency Maps, Share My Information, My Messages, and My Storage Center. A larger blue callout box in the center lists these same links in a larger font: My Profile, My Course History, My Equivalency Maps, Share My Information, My Messages, and My Storage Center. A white speech bubble at the bottom right contains the text: 'The "My Account" links allow you to access all areas of your account from any page.' The background of the screenshot shows the SC TRAC website interface, including a navigation bar with 'About SC TRAC' and 'Contact Us', a search bar, and various content sections like 'Transfer Planning in Four Easy Steps' and 'Statewide Agreements'.

The "My Account" links allow you to access all areas of your account from any page.

NOTE:
 These results can be used as an unofficial guide to how your courses may transfer. Other factors that must be taken into consideration are grades received in your original courses and the major you will be pursuing after you transfer. In all instances, final decisions on acceptance of course credit will be made by each individual institution.
